Slow business has city and merchants at odds

By DAVID LELAND

WITH TENSIONS in the business community running high due to the post-earthquake blues, an on-going rift between the city and merchants has surfaced with renewed fervor.

The question: At what point do city code regulations stop acting as a way to preserve village character and begin to work against the small business owner.

As can be imagined, both sides have a different answer to that question.

No one, especially the city, would argue that tourism has dropped dramatically since the Oct. 17 earthquake — that equates to decreased revenue for both merchants and the city via a loss of sales and hostelry taxes.

At the same time, however, the city is turning a deaf ear to pleas from merchants asking for leniency regarding enforcement of strict commercial codes.

Most often complaints trickle down to city hall after businesspeople are issued stern code-violation warnings by newly hired Code Compliance Coordinator Mike McLeod.

"We feel it's extremely important that we maintain the aesthetic and economic character of the community to ensure its long-term economical viability," said Diane White, city planning director.

McLeod reports directly to White, who is given her direction by the Carmel Planning Commission and Carmel City Council.

White said the city is simply carrying out a mandate contained in the 1984 general plan. To be specific: (To) "intensify enforcement of zoning codes (and) to maintain residential character of the city."

Nevertheless, some merchants say they are feeling like the city is not being understanding and is going out of its way to the point of nit-picking.

"It's a classic case of bureaucratic excess," said Dean Vittetoe, co-owner of the Crystal Fox on San Carlos. "He's (McLeod) out looking for problems; he's got to justify his existence."

Vittetoe's problems began after McLeod notified him by letter that the Crystal Fox's use permit did not allow the sale of jewelry.

Vittetoe estimates that crystal jewelry makes up about 25 percent of his inventory, which has been the case since he bought the fine crystal business in 1984.

The jewelry, which ranges in price from $20 earrings to $750 necklaces, is not allowed, McLeod said. An amended use permit must be applied for.

Vittetoe paid his $150 to the city for his amended use permit and will have his day before the planning commission sometime in January.

"We (just) want to bring him into compliance with his use permit," said White, adding that the city has cut the price in half for applying for an amended permit.

Vittetoe is hardly mollified by a cut-rate price for the application.

"They're (city) going after us in a way that is not appropriate," he said. "It's so anti-business here that it's hard for a young family to look forward to any future running a business in Carmel."

McLEOD MARKS the third person picked in the last few years to enforce city business codes — he held a similar position in Southern California.

Christmas in Carmel

IT MAY not feel a lot like Christmas, with daytime temperatures soaring into the 70s, but the spirit of working together to ensure a tightly knit community is alive in our town. This year the City of Carmel is joining forces with the Carmel Business Association, Carmel Residents Association and Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association in sponsoring the traditional lighting of the Christmas tree placed at the intersection of Ocean and Junipero avenues. Participants will gather at 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 15, in their respective neighborhoods and carol their way to the tree lighting, scheduled for 6 p.m. at Carmel Plaza. (See related story on page 4.)

New water board halts any additional water hookups

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board Monday night voted to stop taking applications for new water permits, just one of the items on a long agenda that signaled a new direction for the board with two newly-elected members.

The emergency suspension, which took effect that night, lasts until the board approves a long-term ordinance that outlines the types of projects that will receive permits. The suspension allows applications already filed with the district to be processed and completed.

The board also decided to accept applications that would not increase water use, such as remodels where existing plumbing fixtures could be retrofitted so water use is below or equal to current water demand on the property.

The vote was not unanimous. One member, architect Paul Davis, stepped down from the vote and discussion, declaring conflicts of interest and director Jim Hughes and Pacfic Grove Mayor Morris Fisher voted against the suspension. Fisher explained he had planned to vote for the suspension but the public testimony had changed his mind.

Hughes said he did not feel there was an emergency since there is more water in the system this year than last.

Directors Dick Heuer, Karin Strasser Kauffman and recently-elected members Bob Russell and Dale Hekhuis, who were sworn in Monday night, voted in favor of the suspension. Russell and Hekhuis ran on a platform calling for a limitation in water connections and Russell made the motion to stop accepting water connection applications.

The district is now under 20 percent rationing.

The board plans to conduct a public hearing on the long-term ordinance Jan. 8, then publish a draft ordinance which could be approved at a second meeting Jan. 22. If it is approved in urgency form, the ordinance would take effect immediately upon approval.

That ordinance, however, could also prove to be temporary and may last only until the board lifts rationing or until it certifies the allocation environment impact report that analyzes the supply and distribution of water within the district.

After certification of the report, the board will decide if it needs to cut back on the amount of water taken from the natural system to supply demand. If it determines that demand exceeds the environmentally safe yield, more restrictions could be forthcoming.

BEFORE THE vote, the board took almost two hours of comment from a packed house that was heavily weighted with members of the construction and building trades, who protested the pending action.

Speakers said that the building industry was singled out for punishment by this

Good neighbors

Dear Editor:

How about a Good Neighbor campaign? Wonderful recycling boxes delivered to residents last week — hurray! Problem: Boxes sitting in front of non-residents' (houses), may invite burglars. Solution: A Good Neighbor campaign. Let's pull those boxes in for our neighbors and celebrate the good deed!

Impulse buying?

Dear Editor:

As a taxpayer in Carmel for the past 34 years, I feel the Carmel City Council should consider input from taxpayers when spending tax dollars for property acquisitions. I deeply resent that in recent years property has been purchased by the city while residents were not given an opportunity to express their views on such acquisitions at the ballot box.

The decision by the city council to purchase the Hodges propoerty for approximately $1.75 million raises several issues by again bypassing the taxpayer and resident.

First, when purchasing property outside the city limits, does this not increase the need for fire, police, water and other city-provided services at the expense of existing residents?

Second, what are the proposed uses for the Hodges property, which lies in a designated flood zone?

Finally, shouldn't taxpayers have the opportunity to vote on this matter in view that the city has incurred several millionm dollars of debt as a result of acquiring the former Crocker National Bank site and the Torres Street property?

I am asking that the council provide answers publicly to these questions before proceeding any further with the acquisition of this property. In my judgment, with our streets in need of repair, parking facilities woefully lacking, and city revenues stretched, $1.75 million of taxpayer funds could be put to better use.

I urge the city council to consider adoption of an ordinance requiring prior voter approval of property acquisition.

Serving the people

Dear Editor:

I wholeheartedly agree with Mr. Eisner's evaluation of the political situation in Monterey County and the Carmel area; in his Thanksgiving Day Guest Editorial. But, it does not give us much to be thankful for.

Our forefathers founded this country on the principle that "government is for the people, by the people." Not only locally but nationally some of our elected politicians think that once elected they can do as they please. (I do not have to answer to anyone.) Wrong, there is always another election.

As I stated in an October 1988 letter, Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman speaks of what she knows not. The Herald on Sept. 30, 1988 stated: "Supervisor Kauffman reported at a Hatton Canyon Freeway meeting in Carmel's Sunset Center that existing Highway 1 can't be widened enough to accommodate all the traffic that is accumulating. Besides, the state doesn't have the right-of-way on that alignment and homes would have to be removed."

The state owns a 100-foot right-of-way along Highway 1 (paralleling lower Hatton Canyon) and can be widened to four lanes more economically than building a Hatton Canyon Freeway. No homes will have to be removed.

Maybe it is time we exercise our democratic principles and have a recall election, unseat this newcomer with a representative that truly serves the local people. I will strongly support a committee that will pursue this endeavor.

Vigilance is the lesson

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend Albert Eisner on his guest editorial on Measure B (Nov. 23 Carmel Pine Cone). He was right on target, although I reserve comment on his characterization of certain members of the board of supervisors. They must answer to their constituency.

However, I do wish to address Mr. Eisner's omission of Seaside as one of the peninsula cities that did not give Measure B thumbs up. Measure B pointed out the impropriety of local taxpayers paying for federal and state highways by way of a sales tax. This is a dangerous precedent that will have immense economic and social consequences. Certainly more vigilance is required as to how government does business.

Outrageous

Dear Editor:

I read it, but I don't want to believe it.

According to the Nov. 23 Pine Cone, the Forest Theater Guild wishes to extend its season — at the expense of the Children's Experimental Theater program and the brief (four weeks) GroveMont Theater Carmel season.

Extension of the Forest Theater Guild's season would:

1. Sacrifice CET's outstanding summer program for area young people

2. Interfere with the CET Spring Festival — a gift to the community and a celebration — the culmination of a year's work by students, staff and volunteers

3. Interfere with the GroveMont Theater autumn season in Carmel, shortening the season and/or reducing the number of innovative, refreshing and always beautifully crafted productions they bring to us

The Forest Theater Guild would assault the cultural richness of our area in order to add to their season Memorial Day and Labor Day weekend performances of yet another production of Annie Get Your Gun, or the like.

Outrageous!

Carmel Community Cultural Commission is considering doubling the rent of Children's Experimental Theater, a non-profit organization, and adding a fee of 10 percent of their gross, though CET performs a year-round community service for Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Outrageous!

Surely there is time and space for all three groups to share the Forest Theater facilities. And surely the purpose of the Cultural Commission is to support cultural activities in Carmel.

Spirit of statue

Dear Editor:

The documented historical material presented, and accepted by established, accredited, postal historians of California (Herald Weekend Magazine Oct. 29) clearly illustrates that no 1889 Postal Permit was ever issued to a site in Carmel Valley.

The building described as "The Milk House" at White Oak Plaza never housed a postal service; and, the White Oak Plaza property was not the site of a post office according to credible historical records. In addition to the facts of a centennial observed, other information circulated about the valley village area has also been incorrectly stated with many unaccountable omissions as well as errors.

In this connection, with respect to the statue of the madonna at White Oak Plaza, I would like to again submit the following.

I was directly connected with this property for over 50 years. I personally acted as custodian of the statue for a number of years myself. It was my mother Marion Wilson, who conducted the arrangements of the statue, through the Carmel Valley Art Gallery; with, and for, the artist. I have never heard any of the stories, in direct connection with the showing or acquisition of the statue, that seem to be drifting around in various forms of print, of late.

I have found these stories, and related commercialistic reference to 'The Art Gallery Building', to show little respect — to the artist who created the statue — to the dignity of the gallery that also represented the "greats" of the Monterey Peninsula painters — and, to the anonymous purchaser of the statue who made this unusual gift available for all to enjoy. The anonymity was a personal choice — not intended to be probed, or poked at.

I would like to make a suggestion to the current Carmel Valley Village residents and entrepreneurs.

Rather than treat "The Madonna" as a "curiosity," it would be far more in keeping with its background, its true meaning, and its purpose, if it were regarded with a deference of respect, as the gentle, inspiring beacon that it has been to those passing by for a number of years now.

For the Christmas season — how about some groups of carolers wending through the village with a gathering for a grand finale at the statue? Wouldn't such appreciation of the village area, and in the intended spirit of the statue, provide more honorable, constructive, valid, and cheerful interests to encourage for the youngsters (and oldsters) of the village area? I have suggested this before. It never happened. Maybe it will this time?

Sinking feeling

Dear Editor:

The suggestion in the newspaper that a public footpath might be developed between the Hodges property, behind the Carmel Mission, and the Carmel River State Beach gives a sinking feeling.

There probably always has been some limited trespassing in the bird sanctuary. But now there is a new threat. Recently two boys on trail bikes, which can go anywhere, were forcing their way through the hummocky grass on the higher levels and plowing through the reeds in the deep basins, unusually dry during the drought.

The grassy areas are where the water fowl love to feed when the lagoon floods. The basins are their resting spots.

An hour later, ignoring high winds and rain, the two lads were down in a large basin, which holds water the longest, and so is a refuge of last resort for ducks and geese. Plowing through 6 inch-deep water, the bikers rode across and back, around and around. What this was doing to the small fish, frogs and other creatures that the ospreys, marsh hawks and other winged hunters come seeking daily can only be guessed at.

The next day, three different bikers came churning across the grasses and through the basins. They disappeared in the trees along the river, and soon after a dozen snowy egrets flew up from the trees and 40-50 ducks went wheeling over the lagoon. Coincidental or the result of bikers water-plowing in the river's meager wet section?

A public pathway that might encourage walkers and bikers to invade the lagoon or take shortcuts across it could damage a rare resource.

Let's keep the Carmel River bird sanctuary strictly for the birds.

Federal lawsuit leveled against Valere's agent

By DAVID LELAND

A COMPLAINT filed in federal court Nov. 21 portrays Paul Valere as an unassuming, self-taught French artist who was kept in a Svengali-like hold by his agent, Robert Etienne Fruchter.

Filed in U.S. District Court in San Jose, the summons accuses Carmel resident Fruchter of providing false information to Simic Galleries concerning Paul Valere, whose real name is Oscar George Andre Emile Bouville.

> 'He chose to come back to the United States to clear his name, and that's what he's going to do.'
> — Carolyn Keely
> — Fruchter's attorney

Oil paintings created by Valere feature pastoral landscapes of the French countryside.

The authenticity of the paintings had originally been under investigation since the FBI was tipped off by Janine Mumford, former assistant manager at Simic Galleries, during an unrelated art theft which occured at the gallery in January 1988, according to the summons.

At that time Mumford told FBI Special Agent Richard K. Lack that it was a "running joke" between employees at the gallery that Paul Valere did not even exist, according to the affidavit.

Several months later she backed off from that position somewhat and told Lack that she "suspects and believes that there is no Paul Valere and does not know for a fact that he does not exist," the affidavit said.

Besides the charge of misinformation, the summons further alleges that Fruchter "wired" money, fraudulently obtained, to his bank in France in sums more than $5,000 — a federal offense.

Fruchter is scheduled to appear in federal court in San Jose at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 14, for his preliminary hearing.

He will plead not guilty, according to Carolyn Keely, his attorney.

Keely said that Fruchter was living in France during the FBI's investigation and was unaware of the proceedings.

"He had no idea what was happening; no one was informing him," she said. "He was minding his own business."

She said he returned to America to tell his side of the dispute.

"He chose to come back to the United States to clear his name," Keely said, "and that's what he's going to do."

If convicted, Fruchter could face a federal prison sentence and/or a fine.

MEANWHILE, FRUCHTER recently sued Simic Galleries in Monterey County Superior Court, asserting the gallery had not paid him for some paintings.

And, to further complicate matters, Simic Galleries has countersued Fruchter, claiming that he intentionally misled the gallery concerning Valere.

Valere also has paintings at the gallery under the name Jean Ribout.

Moreover, adding to the legal tangle even more, the Monterey County District Attorney's Office filed a lawsuit Nov. 15 in county Superior Court.

That lawsuit alleged that Mario Simic knew that Fruchter was providing misinformation and still passed it along to customers.

Simic Galleries has denied intentionally misleading its customers.

Between 1984 and January 1988, about 461 Paul Valere paintings were sold to 107 customers for a total of about $2.8 million, according to FBI records.

Customers were told that the paintings would appreciate in price, and thus were a good investment. Prices ranged from $4,000 to $24,000.

In fact, the paintings were worth only a portion of their purchase price, according to Stacey Roman, of the San Francisco-based art auctioning firm of Butterfield & Butterfield.

Roman told FBI agents that one painting he examined should be worth between $400 and $600, far under what it sold for.

"He described the painting as having some degree of skill; however, it has essentially no investment value," the complaint said. "The painting resembles hundreds of others."

Locally, Monterey County Bank CEO and Carmel resident Charles Chrietzburg purchased two Paul Valere works in 1984 from Simic Galleries for a total of $9,600. At the time, Chrietzburg was still living in Houston, Texas.

"He felt they were a good investment based on the sales pitch that he was given by the salesman," the affidavit said.

Marcel De Veaux, owner of De Veaux Gallery in Carmel, told FBI agents that he sold Paul Valere paintings prior to 1983, but stopped after a French art expert, Dina Marine, told him that the paintings were "created by a production line of artists."

Fruchter and De Veaux parted company soon after De Veaux began to question the background and very existence of Paul Valere.

The federal lawsuit, supported in detail by a comprehensive investigation by the FBI, will not stall further proceedings by the county DA, according to Morgan Taylor, deputy district attorney.

"I would call it willful blindness," said Taylor of Simic Galleries' lack of disclosure. "I can still show that Simic knew or should have known."

Simic Galleries has removed any inaccurate data from brochures on Paul Valere and notified those who purchased the paintings that they could be reimbursed, according to Ed King, vice president of Simic Galleries.

TO GET to the bottom of the issue, the Monterey division of the FBI interviewed, through an interpeter, Oscar Bouville at length on Aug. 21, 1988.

Born Oct. 26, 1923, Bouville told investigators that he was born near the English Channel, about 120 kilometers northwest of Paris.

Fruchter listed Bouville's birthplace as "near Tours," located on the "banks of the river Loire" in his brochure.

During the investigation Bouville stated that he first met Fruchter in 1977. Bouville said that up to that time he had displayed his works just once, in 1953.

He stated that he had never attended art school anywhere in France and was a self-taught painter. He also said he never had membership with any French art society and had won no awards for his paintings.

Fruchter had represented Bouville as an artist who graduated from L'Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris with honors and later continued his studies there.

A FEDERAL complaint charging Robert Fruchter with knowingly providing fraudulent information to Simic Galleries has been filed in San Jose. The summons concerns allegedly false biographical data concerning French artist Oscar Bouville (shown here), who is also known as Paul Valere. (Chuck Scardina photo.)

Bouville's agent also allegedly exaggerated his client's reputation, saying he was "appreciated and collected" in France, Belgium, England, Holland and the United States.

Bouville told investigators that he has never exhibited paintings in any of those countries.

None of the prestigious art societies listed in the brochure had ever heard of Bouville, according to FBI records.

"Since entering into that agreement with Fruchter, he has not painted anything other than that which Fruchter wanted him to paint in the United States," the affidavit said.

Painting 10 to 12 works per month came easily for Bouville, according to the FBI.

"He earned a modest living selling paintings to French department stores for what amounted to about $20 in United States money," the summons said.

The complaint alleges that Fruchter paid Bouville about $300 for each painting crafted under the name of Paul Valere.

Valere told FBI agents that "he does not consider himself to be a French master painter and that he has no idea what his paintings are worth."

Quake-interrupted meeting on design review on again

By NANCY HILLS

WHAT MAKES Carmel "Carmel" and how to keep it that way will again come under the Carmel City Council's scrutiny when it meets next week to take up design codes in the R-1 district.

The meeting is continued from Oct. 17, when the very ground began to tremble and everyone left the debate in mid-sentence.

At that time, the council was taking public comment on proposed changes to design codes, including building site coverage, required open space, setbacks and building site coverage.

The council had hoped to make some decisions on the code changes that day and may do so in the upcoming meeting.

The review and proposed changes of the code are a reaction many residents have had to new and remodeled homes they feel are too large and/or out of character with Carmel.

The council will meet again to discuss the issues in a special meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 14 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The regulation-by-regulation approach to reviewing and changing the design code is opposed by many of the builders and citizens in the town because they believe it is too piecemeal to achieve the desired end-result: to develop comprehensive and comprehensible design guidelines that capture the essence of Carmel's character.

Opponents of the step-by-step plan would rather see more intensive design review by a design review committee, and clearer definitions of the types of designs considered representative of Carmel character. Numerical regulations stifle creativity and do not take into account differences in building sites, they state.

Proponents of the regulation-by-regulation approach state that changes in the numerical requirements of the code is the only fair and objective way to impose codes on applicants. It also gives a clear outline of what is allowed and not allowed, they maintain.

The planning commission, which sent a report on the issue to the council, was split 4-3 on which approach is the best, with the majority in favor of changing the numerical restrictions.

A staff report to the council for the interrupted Oct. 17 meeting pointed out problems with the piecemeal approach to the code. The city, it states, has no overall design goals contained in a legal document, such as a design element in the general plan, that specifically outlines what is "village character."

"The policies of the general plan are very broad and deal only with general concepts of mass, scale and community character. What is village character? Do we have a true concept of what that term, so frequently used, really means? Has the General Plan broken down the components of scale, mass and neighborhood character so that there is broad acceptance in meaning?" the report asks.

A design element identifies the distinctive feature or features which constitutes the essence of a city or town's individuality. Once the "essence" of the city is identified, then regulations are created that enhance or maintain that character.

The approach is used in other cities, notably Pasadena, where the design element identifies the town as one noted for its beautiful gardens. the design regulations then analyze the different methods of retaining and requiring gardens in new construction and remodels.

A design element in Carmel might identify the town as a "village in a forest," a semi-rustic town of upper canopy native pines, redwoods, oaks and cypress trees, with ground coverings that are either the open forest floor or such that an informal cottage-in-the-forest atmosphere is maintained.

In addition to the commission's report, an informal committee composed of concerned residents and builders composed a letter to the council that outlines steps they felt the council should take to answer problems in the current process and code.

Participants in the committee were Carmel Residents Association President Barbara Brooks, builder Chris Tescher, Northeast Neighbors Association president Barry Smith and builders Fred and Sharon Slabaugh.

The letter advocates a design element for the general plan which "can focus the community's understanding of what constitutes good dsesign for Carmel-by-the-Sea, and just as importantly, what does not."

Additionally, the group recommends:

- The creation of a separate design review board consisting of "diverse" representatives of the community.
- A handbook of design guidelines with illustrations.
- Recommends no changes to the basic existing design standards because "we believe that these numerical standards are not the root cause of the design problems in the R-1 district."
- To preserve large lots, the city might consider becoming an "active participant" in purchasing the properties, removing the lot lines and then reselling the property.

IN ADDITION to making decisions about issues they have already discussed in previous R-1 design workshops, at the Dec. 14 meeting the council may start discussion on two legally and politically controversial topics, lot mergers and criteria for demolitions.

City, CBA, residents join to host enlightening event

By DAVID LELAND

CHRISTMAS IN Carmel this year marks a time when otherwise diverse groups will work together as one cohesive force.

Take, for example, the idea of the annual lighting of the Christmas tree at the intersection of Ocean and Junipero avenues across from the Carmel Plaza in downtown Carmel.

Until this year, the entire affair was a city-sponsored event — now, all that has changed.

"The ice has been broken during this last year," said Barbara Brooks, Carmel Residents Association president, referring to jointly sponsored events such as last summer's "Liveable Cities" seminar.

Joining the City of Carmel this year in the Christmas celebration are the CRA, Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association and the Carmel Business Association.

"It's been a pleasure to work with the community groups to coordinate the event," said Beth Kastrup, city recreation director. "It truly is a reflection of a hometown Christmas."

Now it's up to the residents of Carmel to take part in and support the annual ceremony.

Those living within the boundaries of the Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association may congregate at 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 15, at Torres Street and Third Avenue; CRA members at Carmel City Hall; and CBA members at Sunset Center.

The tree-lighting ceremony is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. If you don't want to come en masse, join the festivities anyway.

From their point of departure, residents will walk to the tree-lighting ceremony while singing lively Christmas carols.

"This is the kind of thing that will grow each year," Brooks said.

In addition to the lighting of the tree, a bandstand will be placed in Devendorf Park. The Carmel High School Band will start things off, followed up by the sweet music of Nick Williams.

And that's not all.

The CBA has baked and donated 35 dozen cookies; the city 15 dozen; and each neighborhood group 25 dozen.

A Bingmobile will be set up in Devendorf Park loaded down with cider, and colorful pinatas will be available for the children.

Brooks added, while the varying groups have chipped in enough money to provide for supplies, their goal is to raise $500 to offset those expenses.

cant in Carmel and some of older cottages that lend Carmel its unique atmosphere. The planning commission recommended waiting until the historical survey of Carmel is completed.

Lot mergers were suggested as one way to maintain the larger parcels in town that actually consist of two, three or more lots of record.

The planning commission will review any decisions the council will make, then send their recommendations back to the council for final approval.

Items that the council could make a determination on include:

- The maximum square footage of a house on a 4,000-square-foot lot, the average lot size in Carmel. The planning commission recommended, with some members dissenting, setting that limit at 35 percent of the lot, but most councilmembers believe that might be too low. At 35 percent, the maximum amount of square footage would be 1,400 square feet, which would include 200 square feet for a garage.

An alternative is 40 percent, which would allow 1,600 square feet. Currently, it is at 45 percent, or 1,800 square feet.

- The percent of a lot that can be covered by structures.
- Increasing setback requirements from 3 feet on the sideyards and increase back and front setbacks of homes. Most of the councilmembers, have indicated they are interested in increasing required setbacks.

The current 3-foot setbacks are believed by most of the councilmembers to have generated the "tunnel-like" effect between houses. That has been a concern of the council's since the review of the residential district code began.

- Additional setbacks for second stories. All councilmembers, except Laiolo, have said they are interested in requiring an additional setback on the second story of a house.
- Increasing open space requirements. In conjunction with that, the council needs to determine its definition of open space.

Currently, open space can include driveways, pathways and decks. The council has discussed changing that definition to only landscapable areas.

The smaller-than-average lot size found in Carmel has led to a dilemma for the city council, particularly in face of the complaints councilmembers have received about some of the newer homes in Carmel that are built out to the maximum.

The council has been trying to answer the question of whether the city should permit what are normal family-sized homes in other cities on Carmel's smaller lots or reduce the maximum square footage permitted in an effort to retain the Carmel cottage atmosphere. A reduction in house size, it has been argued in the meetings, will eliminate families from moving to the city.

The council has discussed a 50 percent open space requirement — landscapable area — and relying on that criterion to maintain the village in a forest ambiance rather than changing other sections of the code.

The floor area allowed and setbacks would remain the same, but the house would have to be designed to leave 50 percent open space.

Planners to review R-4 recommendations

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will review its recommendations on the R-4 district next week before sending them on to the city council.

The commission will meet at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 13 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The staff will present its compilation of the commission's decisions on the district that has been controversial for almost 10 years.

In its last meeting on the R-4 district, which is located in the northeast quadrant of the commercial area of Carmel, the commission decided on:

- A density of 33 units per acre and 50 percent open space.
- No new commercial uses will be allowed, but existing uses will be permited to be rebuilt and will become conforming. Many of the businesses in the R-4 district are service businesses that residents use, such as a laundromat, paint store and dry cleaners.

After the city purchased the Handley property, now called the Torres Street property, the only large single piece of land that can be developed is Robert Murphy's property on the corner of Fourth and Junipero avenues.

Murphy has submitted plans for 20 units, 10 apartments and 10 condominums for the approximately one-half-acre parcel. That works out to 44 units per acre, or a base of 33 units per acre with a low- to moderate-income housing bonus. The project includes two low-income housing units.

suspension, more than any other commercial enterprise.

Objections and concern were expressed by home owners who were waiting on remodel projects, a representative from a coalition of non-profit agencies that had a project that would be affected and numerous builders, contractors, architects and construction workers.

"If you have a job that you could suspend for six weeks, well, then, I would like your job," declared one woman who said she works for an architectural firm.

Sprinkled amongst the protestors were those in favor of the action, including former water board member and chairwoman of the Residents Water Committee, Patricia Bernardi, who praised the board's action. Bernardi referred to the November landslide election that put Russell and Hekhuis on the board as proof that the peninsula was behind the aciton.

Earlier this year, the Residents Water Committee, with the help of neighborhood organizations, had collected more than 10,000 signatures on a petition that requested a limitation on new water connections. The former board had refused to put restrictions on new water meter connections, one vote ending in a 3-3 tie.

Heuer, elected chairman Monday night, said he believed that the backlog of applications filed with the district would tide over the building industry longer than the temporary suspension would be in effect.

Carmel Assistant Planner Brian Roseth told the board that the city of Carmel supports the action but said there were questions about the type of permits that would be processed. That needed to be cleared up before a vote is taken, he said.

Seaside Mayor Lancelot McClair protested the action, stating that many people in his city were dependent on the building industry trade, while Seaside City Attorney Elaine Cass said that the board's action could be illegal.

— Audience member at water board meeting

But Stasser Kauffman told the audience that some kind of limitation on water connections should have been enacted much earlier.

"We need to send a message," she said. "We institute rationing on one hand," but continue to add to the demand.

City and merchants are at odds

McLeod said he attempts to maintain a casual attitude when he introduces himself while on his rounds.

"There's a few people that are pleased to see me," he said. "(But) others feel I'm Gestapo-ish."

Since coming on board Oct. 12, McLeod has not issued any citations, which can result in the loss of a business license. He has, however, written scores of letters to merchants, residents and outside firms citing various code violations.

Some merchants complain that it is impossible to advertise because of strict limitations on signage.

"A sign is an important part of your business," said Darlene Miller, representing Accents owners Stephen and Aness Pogni. "You have to advertise season sales."

McLeod recently advised Accents, a clothing store on Ocean Avenue, that a banner sign proclaiming "Clearance" was in violation of the city code.

While the Pognis may be indignant at the idea of not being able to tout their sales, the city is unsympathetic.

"They were one of the most blatant violators," said White, adding that the sign had been placed in the window for several months before McLeod asked the Pognis to have it removed.

White said that window violations take precedence over any other violation because if left unchecked other businesses will take up that practice.

ONE REASON the city has not taken the business community as seriously as it would like is because merchants have a history of non-involvement in the city's legislative process.

"The business community does not get involved in the process," White said, adding that the city spent two years debating commercial codes in public hearings. "The business community was not present for that dialogue."

CBA President Barbara Simmons, who describes the business community as being in "low spirits," is attempting to change all that.

"The CBA is trying to take a more proactive stance," she said, citing the CBA's recent involvement with the city's parking committee survey.

Until now, however, White has watched as merchants complain from the sidelines.

'They're no different from anyone else. If they don't feel they are involved, they don't care.'

— Diane White

— Planning director

"They're no different from anyone else," she said. "If they don't feel they are involved, they don't care."

White also took issue with some CBA members who feel somewhat impotent regarding city affairs because they are nonresidents and cannot vote for their representatives on the council or planning commission.

"The planning commission and council listen to all segments of the community, whether they vote here or not," she said.

Simmons agreed with White, but said it is time to move on.

'They're (city) going after us in a way that is not appropriate. It's so anti-business here that it's hard for a young family to look forward to any future running a business in Carmel.'

— Dean Vittetoe

"We'll admit the guilt of not being being there when they wrote the laws," Simmons said. "As a city they have the right to complain that we did not give input, but they have to be open to change."

To that end, Simmons appeared before the city council at its Dec. 5 meeting asking for some on-going dialogue between the city and CBA.

It was decided that a committee would be formed composed of CBA members, councilmembers, planning commissioners and McLeod.

"There's not much we can do except sit down with the city and say why it's not working and why it's not fair," Simmons said.

At press time Mayor Jean Grace had not selected city representatives to serve on the committee.

Full agenda for first meeting of new water board

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District took several actions at its Monday night meeting ranging from metering large wells in Carmel Valley to giving staff direction to pursue interim water supply projects.

The board did not exactly whip through the list of important decisions, but moved significantly faster on these items than on the suspension of water meter hookups.

The board is also conducting another meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 21 at the Robert Down School in Pacfic Grove.

Most of the items will return to the board for futher review.

During the meeting that ended at almost 1 a.m., the board:

- Voted to set up a citizens panel to review the rationing program currently in effect. The members of the board will each nominate a committee member on Dec. 21.

The board also voted to consider an ordinance that would require a 40-percent cutback in golf course and turf irrigation. Commercial and residential rationing is at 20 percent. The board will probably review that at one of its January meetings.

On this issue, Chairman Dick Heuer said that next day, the "board was addressing one of the most frequently commented on and perceived inequities in the rationing system."

The board reasoned, he said, that golf course and turf irrigation can be cut back without any significant economic loss.

- Determined that new annexations to the California-American Water Co. must bring their own water supply with them or reduce water consumption.
- Voted to bring back an ordinance that would require that owners of the 21 largest wells in Carmel Valley meter their wells. The ordinance include properties of 2.5 acres and wells that pump 20 acre feet or more a year. Those wells a account for 80 percent of water pumped by private pumpers. The cost of metering a large well, the board said, was about $400 to $500.

The rule will include Carmel Valley golf courses, the Odello property and the Williams farm.

- Voted to conduct an environmental assessment on keeping in the drought reserve 420 acre feet freed by the proposed Carmel Sanitary District/Pebble Beach Community Services District sewage water reclamation project.

Carmel Meadows subject to 18-foot limit

THE MONTEREY County Planning Commission will hold a public hearing at 3:40 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 13, at the courthouse in Salinas concerning height limits in Carmel Meadows.

The suggested height limit is 18 feet, which has already been adopted for Carmel Point.

In order to make the change, the Carmel Area Land Use Plan would have to be amended.

County planners have prepared a negative declaration for the project and the planning commission will consider adoption of the document.

For further information contact the planning department at 755-5025.

CV master plan traffic report at supes Dec. 12

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors will receive its yearly evaluation report concerning traffic in portions of Carmel Valley at its meeting Dec. 12.

The report will be a part of the board's consent agenda and is scheduled for a public hearing at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 30.

The board does, however, have the option of pulling the item from its consent agenda and taking public testimony at next week's meeting.

The report, prepared jointly by the county public works and planning departments, is a stipulation of the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

The plan has "thresholds" for traffic on Carmel Valley and Rio roads and Carmel Rancho Boulevard. If traffic levels reach above standards dictated in the master plan, a building moratorium can be placed on the valley.

Of the 12 segments of valley roads studied, the area of Carmel Valley Road between Laureles Grade and Ford Road appears to be running above accepted levels, according to the report.

The threshold for the existing level of service, as shown in last year's traffic report is 10,826 average daily trips.

Average daily trips on the segment now stand at 11,500, according to the report. That drops the segment down into the lowest category of traffic flow.

A copy of the report, entitled "Carmel Valley Master Plan — Yearly Evaluation Report of Traffic on Carmel Valley Road, Rio Road and Carmel Ranch Boulevard," can be obtained at the Monterey County Department of Planning and Building Inspection at 1200 Aquajito Road in the county courthouse.

For further information call 747-7820 on Tuesday or Thursday, or the planning department in Salinas any day at 755-5025.

We're not alone

A FRIEND complains about lack of parking spaces, soaring real estate and rental prices, a controversial plan to widen a highway through town, and another "development" that would wipe out thousands of trees. Only in Carmel, you say? No — she has just returned from a visit to Aspen, Colo.! We are not alone, friends.

I HAD no idea how many "municipal properties" the city of Carmel has. Director of Administrative Services Greg D'Ambrosio took me on a tour to see all of them: four "natural park lands," nine "urban park lands," eight "municipal facilities and grounds," and 11 "parking lots" — all within one square mile! Greg's purpose was to show this newest member of the Community and Cultural Commission possible locations for sculptures and other works by local artists. It's obvious that there are a number of excellent places where art would enhance the natural beauty of our surroundings.

OVERHEARD AT the Monterey Bay Aquarium on the busy Thanksgiving weekend: "I can't believe what I'm seeing!" The visitor was standing in front of the "umbrella jelly" exhibit in the aquarium's new "Living Treasures of the Pacific."

HEARING ABOUT a concept of police work referred to as "community-based policing," I checked it out with Carmel Police Chief Jack McGilvray. (This type of police work emphasizes prevention, education and communication. It involves walking the beats on a regular basis. Evaluations are based on contacts made and relationships developed.)

Does this work in Carmel? Its principles do. "We are too small to follow this in a formal way," Chief McGilvray told me. "We do it through our Neighborhood Watch program — officers meeting with residents in their homes. Yes, we do 'walk the beats' on a regular basis. One or two officers are out there on foot on every shift, as much as possible. That's mainly in the business district, occasionally also in residential areas."

ARE YOU a victim? A person in need of Telecare, a parent wanting information about children's car seats? The Carmel Police Department takes education seriously, offering brochures on these and many other subjects — for the taking — in the department's lobby. Among the titles: California Runaway Hotline; Buckle Up California (myths and truths about the law); California Sexual Assault Victim Services program; WeTip (Information about crimes); Landlord-Tenant: answers to questions; and DMV Motorcycle Driver Supplement. You can also find Lifesaver emergency tags for children's ID...and copies of the Carmel Pine Cone.

SPLENDID SENIOR

"The path to a better world is through better people."

Bob Tannenbaum, Ph.D., professor emeritus of the Development of Human Systems in the Graduate School of Management at UCLA, gave those words as keynote speaker at an organization development conference in 1985. They speak for him and for his distinguished and on-going career.

When Bob conducts his annual graduate seminar at UCLA next spring, he will be completing 53 years of teaching. It began at Oklahoma A&M (now Oklahoma State), in 1937. He gained his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago and became a member of the faculty there following service in World War II. Then the big move to UCLA in 1948 — as assistant professor of industrial relations. The winds of change were blowing at that time — for his professional field and for Bob Tannenbaum himself. He got involved with the staff of the first Western Training Lab in group development. "It was a key turning point for me," he said. "It led me into the behavioral sciences."

In the '50s a group of UCLA teachers split off from industrial relations and started the first specialty in behavioral science for management. This involved the parts of psychology, psychiatry, sociology, anthropology and ethics (values) that are relevant to formal organizations — businesses, and also hospitals, government, schools.

Always in the forefront of developments in his field, Bob and some of his colleagues moved into sensitivity training, with a focus on individual growth and development. At the same time, his concept of organizations was evolving, to embrace even larger social systems. Solving problems such as pollution would come through interorganizational efforts, and team building is an integral part of these efforts.

Along the way, Bob contributed to two books and was one of three editors for each: Leadership and Organization in 1961 and Human Systems Development in 1985.

This & That

What, in all these important activities, does he feel best about? The answer came swiftly: "The community renewal project for the Israeli kibbutzim." Bob Tannenbaum headed this project. Beginning in 1969, he and colleagues trained kibbutzniks to do organization development work, and they trained other trainers so that now there is an organization serving the kibbutzim in OD work for their own development. Bob still corresponds with friends in Israel and is generous with his time and the fruits of his lifework. The project remains close to his heart.

A heart attack and bypass surgery in 1971 slowed this man down, temporarily. It was another six years before he "retired" and moved to Carmel — "for the peace and quiet, for a beautiful place in which to work. It was a buffer from the direct pressures in Los Angeles."

The bridge from Bob Tannenbaum's vital full-time career to his equally vital retirement is working with individuals on their personal growth and development, often in the context of their business or professional lives, but still primarily as "whole human beings." He contributes to programs which train professionals for the field of organization development. He works one-on-one with top executives from all over the country on their own personal growth and development. (I find it fascinating to picture these fortunate executives coming to Carmel for two full days of intensive personal work.) Then there's his class — a graduate seminor for masters and Ph.D. students each spring at UCLA. The focus? Personal growth and development.

Bob also maintains a lively correspondence with former students as well as business executives and professional colleagues. It is obvious that many people still look to him for guidance and for his highly valued opinions about issues relevant to his numerous fields of interest. The Tannenbaums' Carmel home welcomes at least two or three such contacts, in person, every month. People "come by" from far places.

Embracing his age (74) with customary forthrightness, Bob believes that "the whole challenge of the later years" is to let go of the need for ego enhancement and to be "that which one truly is." No easy task, he acknowledges, because we have spent so much energy developing and maintaining our ego image, that mask we build up throughout our lives.

"Letting go" also has relevance in his intimate family setting which is so important to this man. "One of my learnings," he told me, "has been the importance of not holding on to one's children, but being available for support and friendship without expectations of "shoulds." Speaking of his family — Edith, his devoted wife and partner of 45 years, two daughters, two granddaughters and another granchild on the way — for the first time in our discussion this articulate man can't find the words for what he is feeling. For him (and this is what he teaches) there does not have to be a separation between ones' career, one's family and friends, one's essence as a human being.

As I left his warm, comfortable home, hoping that I could convey adequately what I know and feel about my one-time teacher and long-time friend, I caught sight of a wooden plaque on the wall of his patio. "L'Nayyim - to Life!" Bob Tannenbaum celebrates life — his own and others' — splendidly.

...and THAT

For my first act, I will bring you something old, but still, credit where credit is due. In October the Carmel City Council voted to revise the beach fire ordinance so the fire pits at the base of Ocean Avenue could remain intact (city ordinance allows no fires above the mean high tide line). Councilmember Ken White praised Carmel resident Noel Mapstead for leading the charge to keep the pits, stating that this was an example of what one citizen could do to change his or her government.

Do you remember the Carmel Sands Motel project? Many people have asked what had happened to it. The project was in the headlines often during the 1980s while the Little family dickered and negotiated with the city about tearing down and rebuilding their motel on the corner of San Carlos Street and Fifth Avenue. The concept was approved in 1986 and then the design, but it disappeared from the planning department. The final architectural drawings have been submitted to the city and it will take another three or four months for them to be reviewed. After that, the project starts?

One of my favorite people, Marjorie Fontana, that whirlwind of care and concern for all living things, will once again have her Christmas hand-knit scarf and personally selected walking stick sale outside the Carmel Post Office (usually between the PO's Dolores Street entrance and Friar Tuck's). Look for her sometime during the week of Dec. 11.

All proceeds go to help Wolf Haven, an organization that shelters wolves, protects the species and educates the public about this much-maligned animal. She usually sells out in one day, so get there early.

Fontana is making a special trip from her new home in Twain Harte for her annual sale. And yes, you read this first in Biz Beat last week.

Holiday spirit

THE END-OF-THE-YEAR holiday season is upon us. The Hospice Tree of Life has brightened the sky in downtown Monterey with thousands of lights purchased for loved ones with more to be added as the season moves on.

Remembering that we share our blessings, we do not give, there is a lot of sharing going on on the Monterey Peninsula. Doubletree, once again, will offer Room At The Inn for those requiring emergency accommodations. "All in the spirit of giving to help the less fortunate," says Dan Brown. Referrals are made by seven local agencies.

Long-time supporter of the Salvation Army, Miss Joan Fontaine of Carmel, wearing the old-fashioned bonnet made famous by Gen. Evangeline Booth (daughter of the founder), was only one of the many bell-ringers beginning the season with the traditional red kettle. Ms. Fontaine was given special permission to wear the bonnet by Col. Bruce Harvey, Northern California division commander.

The "Spirit of Christmas Toy Drive" to benefit the Family Resource Center started last Friday with a tree-lighting ceremony at the Monterey Plaza. Donated toys will be received in the lobby until Dec. 22 at which time the toys will be distributed by Santa and his elves to 150 children at 10 a.m. Co-sponsors with the Plaza are KOCN Radio, Monterey Jaycees, Pacific Western Band and the Family Resource Center.

You will be able to see Santa at the Sheraton every Saturday until the big day. The annual winners of the school children's Christmas Card Contest will be announced on Dec. 9 among the trees decorated by Flowers Unlimited.

Jim Cota is gearing up to share the joys of Christmas with others through his adopt-a-family-project called SANTA. Other sharing people are welcome, so call the Salvation Army. And, in the spirit of sharing, the Auxiliary of Meals on Wheels welcomes you one and all to "A Christmas Social" next Sunday afternoon at the MOW building in Pacific Grove. Awaiting you: food, drinks, companionship, music by Gordon Duffy, Santa, door prizes and a boutique of holiday items.

'Tis the season to party. to be jolly, to be alive and keep others alive. A touching event on the calendar is the "Candlelight Vigil" by MADD Dec. 10 at 5 p.m. at Ramada Inn, North Main Street, Salinas (with an awards dinner following). This is an opportunity to remember victims of drunk driving (my son is among those), and hope for a less-violent future for all of us. After all, drunk driving is the most frequently committed crime in our country with arrests totaling three times that for all other crimes. The Monterey County Chapter of MADD needs volunteers also. Call 372-MADD.

Later that same evening Clint Eastwood will emcee a benefit for Pajaro earthquake victims at the Monterey Conference Center. Other local celebrities attending are Paul Anka, Doris Day, Joan Fontaine and Merv Griffin (along with a few surprise guests). You may bring nine friends if you book a $500 table for the dinner and entertainment. Call Armanasco Public Relations for info.

Sharing with others this past week were Virginia Stanton (a holiday dinner party for 62); a Festive Open House given by Col. and Mrs. F. Lee Early; an English Estate Party given by Mark Lupo in Carmel Valley. Never let it be said that Pebble Beach lets a week go by without a golf tournament. This time it was the Rotary Paul Harris Open. The Wine & Food Society shared the delights of fine dining and wining with members and guests and the MP Museum of Art brought the glories of the holiday season to reality with Festival of Trees as they have done for 21 years. The days are shorter now. Darkness arrives early and the white stars dazzle the eyes on clear nights. However, gold stars were sparkling above the trees at the Preview Gala of Festival of Trees causing everyone to pause by each of the two-and-a-half dozen stunningly decorated trees.

The '89 theme, "Visions of Christmas," brought a vision of fantasia to the Monterey Fairgrounds as the gala opened the four-day event. Only two days before Maribel Breyer and her dedicated crew of elves were hurriedly funishing the handmade ornaments for the last tree. However, general chairman Gail Compton. saw to it that all were in place on (simulated) snow bases for the opening.

Gala guests were perusing the two dolls with wardrobes and the 57 miniature paintings with the Sunday afternoon auction in mind. The Museum International Shop and the Hesters Country Store and Boutique were doing a brisk bit of business.

It stretches the imagination to envision a group of talented ladies spending 100,000 hours over a period of 10 months designing and constructing score after score of handcrafted decorations for the trees commissioned by business for office display. So, thanks go to those businesses that support this community effort for the Monterey Peninsula's primary cultural (and educational) center.

How about the idea of a thank-you party to thank those who gave you a thank-you party? That was the idea behind the sit-down holiday dinner given by Virginia Stanton in her Carmel Valley home. She wished to thank the organizers and committee members for the "Grand Gala By the Bay," which was a thank-you party for the Grand Lady of Carmel Valley, Virginia Stanton, for her million-dollar contribution towards the construction of the history and art museum.

JEANETTE SOLLINGER of Zurich, Switzerland, a student at MIIS, talked with Festival of Trees general chairwoman Gail Compton and entertainment chairwoman Tandy Messenger. (Chuck Scardina photos.)

DANA KENNEDY was attracted to the train on the "All Aboard Tree" at the Festival of Trees. His parents John Kennedy and Patty Harder accompanied him.

DOLORES JOHNSON (head of the artists' miniatures for Festival of Trees), board member John Sammon and Nadine Cox admired paintings donated by the artists.

Fred Stanley said, "I've known Virginia for 50-plus years. She used to call me 'Little Freddie'." Virginia quipped, "You were the prettiest young boy I had ever seen." When Burney Threadgill said, "Virginia gives us something to live for. I've known her for 25 years." Fred called out, "Newcomer!"

Pauline Stanley called attention to one of the first fund-raisers Virginia worked on. A new roof for Carmel Mission. Virginia replied, "Oh, yes. Bob (her late husband), and I were part of a show. It was fun and brought in $32,000 for the Mission roof."

Virginia, who never gets carried away with her own importance, said. "We couldn't live without all of you. People like Kitty Ragsdale. Without you guys I couldn't have done anything. What I do is just my way of saying thank-you because I love this area so much."

The sounds of "fore!" and of golf balls whizzing past were gone but not forgotten as the music of Ronny Justin on his "Chapman Stick" filled the air of the Conference Room at The Lodge in Pebble Beach. The Second Annual Paul Harris Golf Open had just been completed and the lucky winners and not-so-lucky players came in for the awards dinner.

The contest was played on the four tough courses in Pebble. Winners were: Spyglass Mini Tournament Low Net: Floyd Olson; Low Gross: Rich Behm; closest to the pin: Dick Trotter

THREE DEDICATED museum workshop members came out to see the results of their beautiful decorations at the preview gala for Festival of Trees: Adeline Harp, Mimi Weingarten, and Maribel Breyer, who was head of the festival workshop.

PAT TOTTEN, president of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art board, Betty Rodden, Virginia Stone and Jeanne Souchak all worked to supply the Jesters' R.E. Joice Country Store at Festival of Trees.

JULIAN CARNES, Delta executive from Mills Valley, joined Barbara Burdick and Philip Lombardi at the preview gala of Festival of Trees.

(Poppy Hills); Dave Casas (Spanish Bay), Hal Mathers (Pebble). Putting winner was Rick Behan and flights at Poppy Hills went to Young Koh (third), Kennedy Boone (second), and Floyd Olson (first). At Spanish Bay: Bill Dalhamer (third), Greg Cellitti (second) and Pat Sullivan (first).

While over at Pebble, Bob Stehouwer came in third, J.D. DeWitt second and Dick Trotter first, with Low Net and Low Gross a tie between George Robinette and Don Meyer. Jim Canandra, High Gross Champion winner, won the coveted kokeshi doll given by Mr. Amako.

This tournament is presented by all eight of the MP/Rotary Clubs with 50 players coming from all over the USA, Canada, Indonesia, Japan, New Zealand and South Africa. Of course, the real winner was the Hospice of Central Coast Pediatrics Center, which received $5,000 from the MP Rotary Fund, Inc.

Chucker in Cointreau, Huckleberry, Cranberry, Thyme and oranges after Oxtail Soup En Croute and Poached Salmon with Shrimp Sauce made up an unusual holiday dinner menu. Oh, yes, it was followed by Upland Cress, Water Chestnuts, Quail Eggs and St. Andre Cheese and Floating Island.

Talk about floating, the G.H. Cordon Rouge Brut was floating in all glasses as Cheese Straws and Mini Brioche with Foie Gras were served at the reception for the International Wine & Food Society of MP Annual Christmas Dinner at the Beach Club in Pebble.

Other special libations were Saintbury Garnet Pinot Noit '88, St. Clement Sauvignon Blanc '88 and Cru de Coudelet '87 Cotes du Rhone.

Dinner co-chairs were Mr. and Mrs. Burney Threadgill and Mr. and Mrs. James J. Miller assisted by Mrs. Donald L. Altenburg, sommelier Myron B. McFarland, Greta Jensen (Beach Club manager), and chefs Orlin Marcus and John Romano. It was Burney who insisted that Perdrix Rotie (chucker of Canadian partridge), be the main dish. Richard LaSalle furnished the music and Mrs. Gilbert F. Craig led the group singing Christmas carols. Favors came from Hermes of Paris.

Oeufs appeared twice on the menu. In the salad served after the main entre a la Continental style (as it should be), and again in the Oeufs a la Niege served in a chocolate shell.

The local chapter of the society started 127 dinners ago — around 1956. Four ladies who remember those days were introduced: Mrs. Virginia Stanton, Mrs. Barbara Burdick, Mrs. Jane Kramer, and Mrs. Bobbie Mahony.

It was a splendid dining evening with 80 percent of the members attending along with plenty of guests. Dr. and Mrs. Gerard Jegge, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Nicholas, Mr. Philip Lombardi, Mr. and mrs. Thomas Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Steven Gunia, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele, Ms. Cheri Threadgill, and Mrs. Ida Brown (the latter two from San Fran).

A LITTLE OF this and something else: The YWCA has a wish list: refrigerator, kitchen stove/oven, cannister vacuum with attachments, word processor or computer, wrapping paper, gift tags, ribbon and Christmas cards, posters/pictures, plastic single bed mattress covers...THE MONTEREY RAPE Crisis Center is looking for warm-hearted volunteers to answer the 24-hour hotline. Miss Ruby Keeler received a special tribute from President Michael Crowe. The 1,000-members group is a non-profit dedicated to the preservation of the Art Deco period of arts and architecture. However, the ball proceeds were donated to the Red Cross earthquake relief fund. Tickets were about the same as the big events on the MP. Patrons $150, and dinner/dance at $125 per.

MOTTOS TO LIVE BY

*"I have concluded that the accumulation of wealth, even if I could achieve it, is an insufficient reason for living. When I reach the end of my days, a moment or two from now, I must look backward on something more meaningful than pursuit of houses and land and machines and stocks and bonds. Nor is fame of any lasting benefit. I will consider my earthly existence to have been wasted unless I can recall a loving family, a consistent investment in the lives of people, and an earnest attempt to serve the God who made me. # BUY Peninsula FIRST

By Linda G. Horning

Ten down, eight to go

HOPE YOU all had a terrific Thanksgiving and that your Christmas plans are taking shape. As for me, I've been relentlessly pursuing interviews with more radio station owners and managers, and can't believe what a marvelous variety of formats are available to us!

On July 10, 1989, KPUP (540 AM — the only stereo AM on the Central Coast), went on the air. Owner and general manager Jerry Collins and I discussed the possibility that KPUP may become KDOG, KMUTT or K9 in a few years, but no. We agreed it will probably always remain the popular PUP.

The format is modern country and heavy local news coverage, with three full-time newspeople and 13 stringers each covering a different community. Carmel news airs at 10:30 a.m. daily, PG at 8:30 a.m., Carmel Valley at 5:30 p.m., etc. By the way, "modern country" is a blend of solid gold rock-based music combined with country/western.

One of the themes they run is "making radio fun again," so they have a lot of fun on the air. I can attest to that; Steve connected me with the on-air personality right after our interview so he could prove to me there really is a song called, Linda on My Mind! Anyway, when you listen to KPUP, you'll feel like a friend is entertaining you.

One of the advantages of AM is that the waves cut right through the mountains instead of bouncing off them, so you can clearly pick up KPUP in Carmel Valley and other valleys. KPUP also features state-of-the-art AM equipment to enhance your listening pleasure.

KPUP's mascot (an adorable dog that I can only compare to Goofy, but who is less goofy-looking and is a soft brown color), appears at local events around the peninsula, and was recently at the Monterey Peninsula chamber's trade fair. He also went to the Watsonville area at Halloween to hand out more than 1,000 candy bars donated by Nestles to homeless and earthquake-affected children. (A hearty thanks to KPUP and Nestles for their kindness and generosity!)

Call KPUP's request line 24 hours a day, 7 days a week at 373-7754, or call the KPUP staff at 1-758-5400 for event or other information.

KOCN 105 FM (actually, it's at 104.9 on your digital display), has been owned by Roger and Cheryl Pasquier since 1986, at which time they changed the format from a potpourri of country, sports, and talk show variety to a selection of popular music from the '60s, '70s and today with no hard rock.

It makes for great listening during a productive day, although it is by no means "background" music. It's designed to appeal to the new crop of working listeners of double-income households who enjoy hearing the original artists doing their original songs. Keeps your energy and mood levels happy!

OCEAN 105 FM is community-involved, having recently received recognition at the annual awards ceremony for outstanding volunteer services hosted by the Volunteer Center of the Monterey Peninsula, and having recently co-sponsored the Spirit of Christmas toy drive for the Family Resource Center at the tree lighting ceremony at the Monterey Plaza, to mention just a few.

Additionally, this station can be relied upon for local information as it occurs; they provided ongoing current information during the Pebble Beach fire and were able to broadcast within one hour after the recent earthquake from their transmitting site at Hidden Hills. They now have emergency generators in the studio and have been officially designated an Emergency Broadcasting System station, although let's hope we'll never need them again!

Roger and Cheryl, and the entire "cool" staff at OCEAN 105, welcome your calls at 375-2242.

Fools

THE CARMEL High School drama department's most recent production, Fools, written by Neil Simon, is a comic fable that warms ones heart. The cast and crew members pulled together to make this performance a delightful experience.

The play is set in a small Russian village, Kulyenchikov, in the late 1800s. The town, it seems, has been cursed with chronic stupidity for 200 years. Leon Tolchinsky, a school teacher played by Drew Down, is their only hope for breaking the curse. He must, however, break the curse within 24 hours or he, too will become stupid.

His pupil, Sophia Zubritsky, played by Analee Soares, is the town's hope for eliminating the curse. She is so stupid, she has just recently learned how to sit down. Leon must overcome his feelings for Sophia and devise a way to cure the town of Kulyenchikov.

During Saturday night's production, the audience was laughing aloud and everyone seemed to leave filled with happiness and laughter. This is the effect that the play tends to have on its audience. As the play began, I felt as if a smile had been glued on my face and left there for the remainder of the night.

Victoria Gilbert, director of the play and drama teacher at Carmel High School, is very happy with the students' hard work and performances. "I'm really happy with what I'm seeing," she says. "the students seem to be interest in learning the craft, as performing artists, not just to improve their egos."

Brian Christiansen, who plays Snetsky, a shepherd in the play, is very happy with how well the cast and crew have come together. "We get better with every performance." he said enthusiastically, "We really came together when we needed to."

Drama club president, Drew Dowd, who plays Leon in the production, is really excited with the results of the hard work that everyone involved contributed. "The play is going very well and the crowd is very receptive," Drew feels. "Over the last two months, we have become a family of 10 brothers and sisters."

This year's drama department consists of one class, for both advanced and beginning students, and the drama club which encourages many students to participate in the productions. Around 50-60 students were involved in drama this semester and most of them were involved with the play, Fools. Open auditions allow any student interested to give performing arts a try.

It's not too late to see Fools, in fact, there are three more productions yet to come. I encourage everyone to see this play at least once. It is a charming and touching fable, and as Snetsky the shepherd says, they get better with each performance.

Fools will be performed Thursday, Dec. 7, Friday, Dec. 8, and Saturday, Dec. 9 at 8 p.m. in Room 2, at Carmel High School.

DON'T MISS OUT!

HANDS ON.
The best way to control winter energy bills.

Winter's coming so you'll probably need more light and heat. And that'll probably affect your energy bills. But if you keep your hands on all the right controls, you can actually keep your energy costs under control.

Start with your room thermostat. Turn it down to 68 degrees or lower if your health and comfort permit. And if you turn it down to 55 degrees or turn if off before bedtime, you'll save even more. Turning it off when you leave the house also saves.

Unless your dishwasher requires a higher temperature, turn the water heater down to 120 degrees—no lower. You'll see the results on your bill.

Families interested in cutting energy costs around their home should call PG&E for a Do-It-Yourself Home Energy Survey. Fill it out and send it back for analysis. You'll get lots of great energy conservation tips, too.

If you're a low-income customer, look into PG&E's new Low-Income Rate Assistance Program. If you qualify, you could get 15% off your monthly energy bill.

This winter, take control of your energy costs. Call your local PG&E office for more energy-saving tips.

All toys must be new and not gift wrapped and can be dropped off at any Bank of America branch. On Dec. 20, the 23 USMC Reserve units will make final pick-up of toys from all collection sites. The final phase — distribution of toys — is conducted under auspices of recognized social welfare agencies.

Seniors program needs participants

Carmel Police Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares about their welfare.

Under the program, senior volunteers call participants of the program by telephone from the Carmel Police Department. If for some reason the recipient doesn't answer the phone, the volunteer alerts the police dispatcher and a patrol unit is sent to check on the participant's welfare. To be effective, calls are made at about the same time every day, Dampier said, but the seniors aren't restricted to their homes.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Never be a sourpuss

From the Dec. 17, 1981
Carmel Pine Cone

Sarah Dale Manakee was born in West-by-God Virginia, and now she is living in Sandy Springs, Md. At the age of 84 she began a new career as an artist, painting in oil the things she knew and loved — rivers, oceans, flowers, and hillsides.

She gives us this advice: "Stay busy, sleep well, eat well and don't be a sourpuss. The worst thing that can happen to you is not to have anything to do; no interests, you'll get old quickly then." She has just celebrated her 105th birthday.

Pulse, the Community Hospital magazine, quotes an old Chinese proverb: "A bit of fragrance always clings to the hand that gives you roses." Oh Lord, help us to keep busy, never be a sourpuss and to go on giving roses.

I quote this poem by Sam Walter Foss from memory, and I think it's correct:

"let me live in a house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by.
Men who are good and men who are bad
As good and as bad as I.
I shall not sit on the scorner's bench
Nor hurl the cynics ban
Let me live in a house by the side of the road
and be a friend of man."

Finally, when we forget ourselves, we do things that are remembered. A Danish proverb says, "No one is rich enough to do without a neighbor." Amen.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

An increasing elderly population and the variety of legal issues they encounter have inspired a new specialty among lawyers — elder law. The small but growing number of elder-law attorneys concentrates on age-related subjects such as benefits entitlement, discrimination in employment, pension issues, problems of diminished capacity, consumer fraud, elder abuse and other issues. Fees charged vary according to lawyers hourly rates and the extent of the services they provide. There's even a national association for the specialty: The National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys in Tucson, Arizona.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Bent event

JERRY FORD is at it again.

No, not the guy who kept tripping over his own feet and let Tricky Dick Nixon off the hook, but the wild man with the long hair and beard who's behind Monterey's most unusual and unpredictable annual event — the Pelican Bent-A-Fit Ball.

This year's extravaganza — the seventh annual if you're counting and you should be — will feature seven different performances ranging from Brazilian dancing (from the DeFranco Dancers), to rock 'n' roll, from the electronic guitar effects of Rhino Boy to the bagpipes of Sean Folsom. All this takes place starting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 7 at The Club of Monterey.

This unique fund-raiser benefits the Monterey County Wildlife Center and got off the ground when Ford wanted to do something to help pelicans that were mutilated by vandals several years ago. In its own way it's also a showcase for bands and other "musical" acts that don't get much exposure elsewhere around here. And this year's lineup may be the most eclectic yet.

In addition to the aforementioned acts, there will be comedians, jugglers, video jockeys, three rock bands (including the Michael Kainer Band and Back Trax), Barry Cowsill of the Cowsills (yes, the same group that brought us Indian Lake and Hair many moons ago), and what may be the tastiest portion of the evening, a musical partnership featuring LA recording artist Parthenon Huxley and local guitarist extraordinaire Thom Ayres (soon to be San Francisco guitarist extraordinaire).

Of course, there's always the crowning of the Pelican Queen, in which men can compete, but only as a pair ("because it takes two men to make a queen," says Ford), and the climactic appearance of Ford's own wild and wooly band, Bent, which, in honor of the date, will re-enact the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

Bombs away!

SPEAKING OF annual events (I was wasn't I?), the Fourth Annual KMBY/Music Annex Battle of the Bands gets underway Dec. 12, 13, and 14 at The Club of Monterey.

The finals, in which the top band from each of the three nights vie for the title and more than $7,000 in recording time and equipment, is set for Thursday, Dec. 21. Winners in the past include the Young Presidents, Boys Choir and The Romp.

This year 28 bands entered the competition, presented by T.R. Culbertson and Matthew Schuss, with nine semi-finalists set to go the 12th through 14th. This year net proceeds from the door will be donated to the Red Cross for earthquake relief.

Bands to compete this year include: Rhythm Method and Veet from Santa Cruz, and Prellor from Salinas, on Dec. 12; Sabre and Critical Mix from Monterey, and Black Velvet from Salinas on Dec. 13; and Cheap Wine from Salinas, December from Santa Cruz, and The Believers from Monterey on Dec. 14.

I'M HAPPY to report that The Catalyst in Santa Cruz is back in action and how.

After the Oct. 17 earthquake, the nightclub's neighbors on Pacific Garden Mall suffered devastating damage and loss of life and livelihood. But Santa Cruz has bounced back in its own unique way, turning the mall into a futuristic-looking tent city amongst the rubble.

The nightclub, meanwhile, suffered only minor damage according to Gary Tighe, who books all the shows there, and has been presenting its usual array of topnotch acts, including last night's earthquake benefit featuring The Sports Section (AKA Huey Lewis and the News).

There was also a sold-out benefit concert by Crosby, Stills and Nash and a few days later a knockout performance by Youssou N'Dour, the Senegalese singer who made his mark on Peter Gabriel's In Your Eyes and on the recent Amnesty Internatinal benefit tour.

Upcoming acts include: Camper Van Beethoven tonight (Dec. 7); David Lindley & El Rayo-X on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 8-9; Indigo Girls (sorry, sold out); The Meat Puppets, Dec. 13; Shadowland, Dec. 14; Greg Kihn, Dec. 15; Santa Cruz Steel, Dec. 16; The Call, Dec. 17; Chris Cain Band, Dec. 21; Zulu Spear, Dec. 22; Square Roots, Dec. 23; Bonedaddys, Dec. 29; the return of Snail, Dec. 30, and The Tide (formerly Eddie & the Tide) on New Year's Eve.

Dubbed "The Notre Dame of Nightclubs" by the San Jose Mercury News, The Catalyst actually lives up to the rather heavy-handed moniker, not only because of the imposing club itself, but because of the quality of acts it brings in on a regular basis. Case in point: in 1989 they've featured k.d. lang, The Neville Brothers, Bonnie Raitt, Joe Ely, The Fabulous Thunderbirds, and Rodney Crowell, to name just a few.

Call 'em at 423-1336 for more information. Tickets in the Monterey Peninsula area can be purchased at the BASS ticket outlet at the Wherehouse on Lighthouse Avenue in New Monterey.

"SOMETHING SINGS!," an evening of song with Max Robert and Friends, will celebrate the composer's past works and his newly released recording, Close to the Source. Proceeds will benefit the John XXIII Commission for AIDS Ministry.

The evening will begin at 8 p.m. in the Wharf Theater, Monterey.

"Something Sings!" features such local performers as Robert Colter, Carey Crockett, Diana Crockett, Danny Gochnauer, Gina Welch-Hagen, Lyn Whiting and Max Robert. They will perform selections from Robert's musical plays, including Crowd of Stars (1983) and The Secret Lives of the Teddy Bears (1985), as well as his motion picture score, Rumplestiltskin (1987). Robert will weave the evening together with humor and reminiscences on his career and times.

Also featured will be songs from Robert's latest work, Close to the Source, a collection of songs about facing death and embracing life, inspired by his own struggle with AIDS.

The local composer, writer and four-time Emmy Award nominee has included six songs on his cassette album.

Benefits from "Something Sings!" will be earmarked for funding a day-long workshop with George Melton and Will Garcia, two long-term survivors of AIDS.

The John XXIII AIDS Ministry, coordinated by Father Alan Syslo, strives to meet the spiritual needs of people with AIDS, their families and friends. Serving Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Benito and San Luis Obispo counties, the ministry provides spiritual support to the AIDS Projects in those counties.

City of Carmel distributes variety of free trees Saturday

LAST SEASON, Carmel-by-the-Sea's City Forester and staff hand selected and harvested cones from some of the city's most significant pine trees. These trees were selected for their health, size, shape and overall beauty. Most of these trees started their life in Carmel's forest before the city was incorporated.

These specially selected seeds have been sprouted and hand tended by Carmel's Forestry staff and are offered to you in an effort to reforest and enhance the beauty of Carmel and the surrounding area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea's annual tree survey has noted a continued decrease in young pine trees on private property. Pines are the main trees that filter the sun, sweeten the air and give Carmel-by-the-Sea the feel of a forest. These trees are upper story trees which provide wind protection and beauty to the village. The Forest and Beach Commission is making an appeal to those who live in and enjoy Carmel to do their part in restoring and maintaining our forest.

Join the Forest and Beach Commissioners on Saturday, Dec. 9 from 8 to 11 a.m. in the post office parking lot located at Dolores and Fifth. The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea would like to share these trees with you for planting in your gardens. This year we will also have packets of native wildflower seeds as well as a limited number of Douglas firs, redwoods and Bishop pines available while the supply lasts.

FROM GREGORIAN chant to the Renaissance masterworks of Josquin and Gabrieli, a diverse program will be performed Tuesday, Dec. 12 by Chanticleer. The a cappella vocal ensemble will perform at 8 p.m. in the Carmel Mission Basilica. Tickets must be purchased in advance.

Chanticleer vocal ensemble performs Christmas music

THE MALE a capella vocal ensemble, Chanticleer, will perform "A Chanticleer Christmas" on Tuesday, Dec. 12 in the Carmel Mission Basilica. The concert will begin at 8 p.m., and tickets must be purchased in advance.

Chanticleer showcases 12 voices, ranging from countertenor through bass, earning the ensemble the title "an orchestra of voices." Founded in 1978 by Louis Botto, Chanticleer started with a single performance in San Francisco's Mission Dolores. The group then won international recognition with performances at the 18th International Fortnight of Music Festival in Bruges, the International Josquin Symposium in Utrecht, the Amsterdam Voices Festival and the Salzburg Festival in Austria.

While touring Germany the ensemble has recorded gospel and spirituals as well as the music of Palestrina and Brumel. The group made its New York debut in 1984 at Alice Tully Hall.

The ensemble's discography includes The Anniversary Album, Psallite! A Renaissance Christmas, Chanticleer in Concert, Grant Motets Solennels, and Byrd: Missa in tempore paschali.

Tuesday's concert at Carmel Mission is scheduled to range from Gregorian chants to modern works by Biebl, Holst and Howells. Tickets are $15; $12 for students, senior citizens and groups.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joanne Tenenbaum

'Winnie the Pooh' reborn as a musical

LOOKING FOR holiday entertainment for children long and small? Get set for action-packed melodrama, the taut story of a bear desperately seeking hunny, indeed, a bear whose very life is organized around the need to pilfer and consume this substance in ever greater quantities, No Matter What the Cost. I refer, of course to Winnie the Pooh. Currently on the Main Stage at Monterey Peninsula College is a rowdy production that is not only splendidly costumed but musical.

Directed by Tom McKenzie with musical direction by Barney Hulse, Pooh's sprightly action runs on two tracks: Pooh's determined effort to trick some bees out of their hunny and his distraction from this quest by his best friend Piglet's need to be rescued from Kanga, a newcomer to the Hundred Aker Wood who wants to disinfect every animal in it — starting, alas, with Piglet.

Let those who have forgotten their childhoods linger in the illusion that this was a tender and jolly time. A. A. Milne, on whose stories Kristin Sergel and Allan Jay Friedman's script is loosely based, knew better. Pooh's world is one of barely constrained obsessions (such as the aforementioned lust for hunny), mysterious motivations (witness Owl's peculiar insistence on "following the proper procedures"), and sinister plots — like Kanga's relentless attempts to scrub Piglet spotless or, worse, to poison him with "strengthening medicine."

Sergel and Friedman have taken liberties with the beloved Pooh stories that do not always improve them. Inexplicably, for example, Rabbit has been transformed from grudging, stingy host into crafty hunny pusher, playing on the hapless Pooh's weakness for the stuff.

But Winnie the Pooh is nonetheless a rare event — a show that's really for children, with issues, attitudes, and action children can enjoy hugely. It is also long on spectacle, with splendid costumes designed by Constance Gamiere and delightful sets designed and painted by Bill Doggett. Happily, both closely follow E. H. Shepard's beloved illustrations. Christopher Robin's nursery walls slide open to reveal a painted backdrop that reproduces Shephard's map of the Hundred Aker Wood. Pure hunny for the eye of a Pooh fan.

The nursery itself is simple but splendid. Silhouettes of Christopher Robin's Hundred Aker Wood friends frolic across the wainscoting, and the simple pieces of furniture are huge, just the way ordinary furniture must look to small children.

Laura Akard McEvoy's complicated and playful choreography augments a lot of strong performances. Hats off to Lyn Whiting's Kanga with her burning urge to take charge of absolutely everybody and undertones of gleeful malevolence. Nancy Kocher's vitriolic and tight-spirited Eeyore is capable of awakening pessimism in the breast of the most determined pollyana. Jon Karachaie's Piglet is frankly adorable, and Laura Akard McEvoy's winsome Christopher Robin aptly conveys the gravity and wonder of the six-year-old heart.

John Farmanesh's Tigger owes too much to Bert Lahr's Cowardly Lion, but the audience loved his energetic, gleeful performance. Gary Pullen's Owl, resplendent in soft brown feathers and huge wingspan, is wonderfully bureaucratic and self-important. Last but definitely not least is Carl Palme's Pooh. Almost lost in a too-huge bear suit that makes him look downright obese, Palme has the class to perform as though he doesn't notice this. Addiction sits charmingly on his chubby shoulders. His Pooh seems bemused by his magnetic attraction to hunny, and he manages to keep his heart in the right place in spite of it.

Lively, colorful, and fast-paced, with just the right amount of audience participation, and prefaced by the house manager's amiable reminder that "cookies are not allowed in the house," MPC's Winnie the Pooh is a dandy show for children — no matter how little or big they are.

CHRISTOPHER ROBIN (Laura McEvoy) shares a favorite story with a favorite bear in Winnie the Pooh. This musical version of the A.A. Milne fantasy continues through Dec. 17 in the Monterey Peninsula College main theater.

Carmel author Alan Marcus discusses art of storytelling

Award-winning novelist, screenwriter and playwright Alan Marcus of Carmel is the featured guest speaker at the December meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Writers Club.

His topic is "STORYTELLING: THE IMPOSSIBLE VOCATION." A question and answer period will follow the talk.

Marcus, a graduate of Brown University, has made telling stories well his lifetime career. Two of his early novels, Of Streets and Stars and Straw to make Bricks were cited for literary distinction.

Of Marcus' writing, Saul Bellow says, "I have as high opinion of this talent as any I have encountered in a long while...," and Winfield T Scott says: "The writing is mostly so simple, so profoundly moving, so right...the superb mixture of realism and fantasy..." Marcus was awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship for creative writing, the McDowell Fellowship for fiction and Atlantic Monthly prize for the Best Published Short Story of the Year.

Marcus has written 12 Hollywood films and several prime time television scripts. He created the T.V. series "Here Come the Brides." He has also worked as a foreign correspondent in Mexico for the Nation and Atlantic Monthly.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 11 in the Conference Room of the Monterey Public Library. All interested persons are welcome to attend without charge.

WHALES WERE ALMOST EXTINCT

The gray whales which annually migrate 10,000 miles from the Arctic to Baja California, past the shores of the Monterey Peninsula, were nearly extinct 30 years ago. Since they have become a totally protected species, estimates on the herd's total now range from 12,000 to 15,000.

Top-flight photographs exhibited at PG Museum

THE TOP 100 photographs from National Wildlife magazine's 1987 photo contest are on display through Dec. 23 at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History. Admission to the museum is free.

Nearly 8,000 entries were submitted to National Wildlife editors who faced the difficult task of selecting winners in five contest categories: wildlife, people outdoors, landscapes and plant life, humor, and underwater life.

The grand prize winner depicts a water-level image of a frog and lily in the early morning light taken by Massachusetts school teacher James Brant. He waded into Maine's frigid Cobbosseecontee Lake shortly after sunrise and stayed there for almost an hour, fighting the cold and taking photographs. His efforts paid off when he successfully photographed a frog emerging next to a lily.

A 71-year-old homemaker from Brevard, N.C., captured first place in the wildlife category with a tundra swan taking to wing at Rice Lake, just north of St. Paul, Minn. First place in the underwater category pictures a school of Crevalle jacks in Mexico's Sea of Cortez. Skip Moody of Walled Lake, Mich., crawled through a patch of wet vegetation in a bog near his home to get close to a dragonfly sleeping on a Michigan lily. It placed first in the plant life category.

Sweeping vistas, minuscule microcosms, and the diversity of the plant and animal hierarchies are represented in a colorful array of stunning images that invite viewers to share these captured moments.

The exhibition was organized by the Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum, Wausau, Wisconsin, in cooperation with the National Wildlife Federation. Following the national tour, these 100 photographs will be added to the permanent collection of the Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum.

The museum is at 165 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove. For additional information, call 372-4212.

ZEBRAS, by Kathee Johnson, is among the top 100 photographs from National Wildlife magazine currently displayed at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History. The show remains on exhibit through Dec. 23 at the museum, located at 165 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove. Admission is free. For details, call 372-4212.

Carl Jung Friends meet Friday

ANNOUNCED AS a "special treat for this special time of the year" is the workshop titled "The Christmas Message from the Point of View of Analytical Psychology," sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung and to be held at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 8 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Using the text of an essay written by Dr. M. Esther Harding, participants will learn how the Christmas story relates to a universal longing by mankind for a Messiah and a New Age; also, how a dream image of a newborn baby may be symbolic of everyman's inner confrontation with the possibilities of renewal and rebirth.

Each participant will be given a copy of the complete text as part of the evening's activities, which also include work in dyads and process-oriented inner work, or meditations.

The public is invited to come to this and all other events sponsored by the Friends of C.G. Jung. This is an informal group of people who are sharing an enthusiasm for the seminal ideas of the Swiss physician/philosopher. They find practical applications of his writings by discussing them in terms of their everyday lives. Dr. Harding, one of Jung's earliest disciples and an analyst for many years, demonstrates and describes such possible applications in her essay.

Prior registration is suggested but not required, as is a modest donation. For further details, call or write, 649-8809, 899 Drake Ave., Monterey.

Kaffe Fassett lectures, signs new book

Kaffe Fassett, recognized internationally for his "bold creativity and innovative use of color" in knitwear, will be the guest of the Thunderbird Bookshop Sunday, Dec. 9, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. That evening Fassett will lecture and present slides of his work at Nepenthe's Phoenix Shop in Big Sur at 7 p.m.

Fassett will sign his latest book, Family Album, which includes knitting designs for every member of the family. Samples of his work will be shown.

In the last decade Fassett has elevated needlework to a new artform with his knitting and needlepoint designs. "Basically I'm painting with wool," he says, "This generation of creative people is convinced they can't design and that hangs them up. In the past, people didn't have that hang-up. My mission is to recover creativity — it's a matter of conquering inhibitions, of playing like a child."

Fassett's work hangs in the Victoria and Albert Museum in England along side the artifacts that provided their inspiration.

The pain of a heart attack begins in your chest. But it doesn't end there.

A heart attack may start with pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the middle of your chest. It can spread to your shoulders, neck or arms. Dizziness, fainting, sweating and shortness of breath may even occur. If you experience any of these symptoms for more than two minutes, call for emergency medical help immediately. The longer you wait, the more you risk dying. Which can be very painful for everyone who cares about you.

MUSIC CORNER

I Cantori di Carmel sings with devotion

EVERY DECEMBER the Carmel Mission Basilica resounds with the musical offerings of the Monterey Peninsula's more ambitious singing organizations and this year is no exception. Inaugurating the annual spate of holiday choral programs, I Cantori di Carmel under the direction of Dr. Sal Ferrantelli, led off the season with an ambitious, interesting program mix of religious and Christmas music.

A Ceremony of Carols by Benjamin Britten falls on the ears with an unusual resonance. It is a modernistic approximation of the musical style of medieval times, leaning heavily on the modal plain-chant carols of 14th, 15th and 16th century England. Scored only for women's voices and harp, a singular atmosphere is created. The music is exquisite, creating an almost angelic aura. The women sang with devotion and sweetness for the most part though there were intermittent pitch problems. The harp accompaniment, excellently performed by Beverly Bellows, is in obbligato style and offers little support for the voices.

Ferrantelli rehearses his singers to a fine polish, disciplining their attacks and cut-offs to near perfection. Dynamics, which contribute so much in this music, were clearly accomplished. Shirley Hubbard and Ellen Collard were the soprano soloists and sang adequately, but one wondered why Ferrantelli didn't use his professional soloists in this music. It merits it.

A sophisticated choice of short selections, the traditional salute to the season, were then performed by the full chorus. Psallite! by M. Praetorius was sung with a large, forward sound. Costeley's Allon, Gay Bergeres had lively rhythms. Berlioz' L'Adieu des Bergers was pleasantly unexceptional. Then the chorus came to life with the Spiritual Behold the Star featuring a flavorful solo turn by soprano Linda Fierro and the Britten Festival Te Deum made a ringing conclusion to the first half of the program.

J.S. Bach's Mass in A Major BWV 234 made up the second half of the program. One of four short masses Bach wrote after 1735 in Leipzig, it is made up mainly of "parodies" (music reworked to fit into a different context.) The work calls for a string orchestra, two flutes, full chorus and three vocal soloists.

It opened with a brilliantly sung choral Kyrie. The music is delightful and the women's voices were strong and cohesive. The Christie was solemn, employing the men's voices. The return of the Kyrie was a disjointed sounding fugue sung with troubled entrances. The Gloria was another enjoyable piece, full of variety and quick mood contrasts to fit the texts. The singing was generally loud and tone quality deteriorated on the higher notes.

The next three sections were for the soloists. Baritone Peter Tuff sang the Domine Deus. The violin obbligato was played by David Dally and neither one of them was ready for a public performance. Musical awareness and intonation were sadly lacking in both participants and the bass continuo was rough and unpolished. Soprano Karole McKeon sang the Qui Tollis with careful attention to detail. The voice is accurate, but needed a fuller timbre. Flutists Fabrizio and King did well, making this a more professional presentation. Alto Linda Purdy's rendition of the Quoniam struggled with an ungrateful vocal line and an uncomfortable voice placement.

The "Mass" closed with a delightful, gigue-like Cum Sancto Spiritu and the chorus gave a joyful, forte reading. Their strength is most apparent in such music and the "Amens" were triumphant, evoking enthusiastic applause from their friendly audience.

However, Bach's choral music is an area of specialty on the Peninsula that has been taken over by the Bach Festival and holds the possibility of critical comparison for striving local singing groups.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

No humbug here

CHARLES DICKENS published "A Christmas Carol in Prose" in 1843. Although he wrote it mainly for income, after it was successful, he said that he "laughed and cried over it as he did over no other story." Many of us don't laugh or cry over it as much any more, but we still view the story of the stingy skinflint and his rebirth as a parable of the season.

It's becoming a little musty though, (few of us have bed curtains or coal scuttles any more, for instance) and there are those who say that It's a Wonderful Life (Jimmy Stewart, Donna Reed) will some day replace it as the true American Christmas Parable. After all It's a Wonderful Life is American, more contemporary, more relevant (it contains the first indication of the Savings & Loans crisis!), has a more personable ghost, and is just generally more fun. My personal opinion is that they will coexist forever because there's an awful lot of air time (and performance time) between Thanksgiving and Christmas and we can't afford to lose a parable. Did you ever notice that there seems to be almost an infinite capacity for Christmas Specials? We continue to create new ones but the old ones never get discarded; they just get pushed out of prime time.

The current production of A Christmas Carol is by Unicorn Theatre Presents at the Wharf Theatre. It is a quite respectable production with some very nice touches. The Wharf Theatre's program does not list the cast of the production, curiously enough. (Perhaps this is because these names might displace some of the numerous advertisements that the program contains.) The program does, however, contain a history of Unicorn Theatre and its productions. Unicorn was founded in 1983 by Carey Crockett and Max Robert. Crockett is a Peninsula actor and respected set designer as well. Max Robert is a singer and composer. Unicorn usually performs classical and contemporary plays as well as original works.

I did recognize Robert Coulter and Phil Pratt, both seasoned veterans, who gave fine performances in this piece. Coulter is Ebenezer Scrooge, and a great version of the "grasping old sinner" he is. He has the range, also, which gives us a good reading of the euphoric reborn Scrooge.

Phil Pratt's Ghost of Christmas Past is suitably spooky, painted a shimmering grey, the color of his chains. Pratt also plays a few minor roles. An honorable mention goes to the Ghost of Christmas Present, I wish I knew his name. The special effects people are listed on a separate flyer and they are: Roy Slater, Lance Jacobson, Roger Wetmore and Phil Pratt. The effects are nicely done: well integrated into the production and not drawing undue attention to themselves. The lighting design used spots for multiple focal points throughout the story and was handled well.

So, take the kids and the grandparents and yourselves and make it a family event. At these prices you won't flinch like Scrooge. If you feel reborn, take in a benefit. Remember, folks, this is live theater, not some dubious movie for almost the same price. It's worth it.

A Christmas Carol plays until December 17th at the Wharf Theatre on Fisherman's Wharf. General admission is $8; students and seniors $6; children under 12 $3. There are a variety of special discounts as well. Call Center Stage Ticketing for details, 649-5561.

Unicorn is taking this show on the road to benefit local charities. On December 8th, they will appear at the Carmel Red Cross; on December 14th, they will be at the Carmel Highlands Volunteer Fire Dept.; on December 15th, they visit "The Kids on the Block." Benefit tickets are $10 and are tax deductible.

If you long for a world in which Justice and Reason prevail, wouldn't it be wise to partonize the products of those who can bring it about?

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Earthquake relief show

MAJOR SURPRISES loom today as jazz players and various celebrities gear up for the Pajaro Earthquake Relief Show at Monterey Conference Center on Sunday evening (12/10).

Master of ceremonies Clint Eastwood (the event's talent organizer too) said "a famous comic" likely will appear there and then along with a well-known male singer for sure. Knowing the value of dramatic tension, Carmel's former mayor held back any further identifications.

The news came through jazz broadcaster Johnny Adams. Since Clint was in Los Angeles, I asked Johnny to track down his pal and provide an update on the benefit inspired by Supervisors Sam Karas and Marc Del Piero.

Johnny quoted Eastwood as saying the vocalist would work with Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra. It previously was announced that pianist lawmakers Leon Panetta and Henry Mello would share their musical wares. Anticipated as special guests: Kim Novak, Doris Day, Joan Fontaine, Merv Griffin.

No-host cocktails will be available beginning at six o'clock with a "shelter supper" served an hour later. Showtime at 8:30.

Tickets cost $100 per couple or $60 per person. Seating's limited — so call Supervisor Sam's office in Monterey Courthouse if you need additional details.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the big earthquake relief benefit produced by Bill Graham and turned into a telethon by KQED-TV raised slightly over $2 million via the pledge route (Sunday 11/26). Graham kicked in $1 million of that total as a challenge grant. Ticket sales hit 31,000 for the concerts at Watsonville, San Francisco Cow Palace and Oakland's Kaiser Convention Center — the dollar net here still was being calculated at deadline but clearly reached the $350,000-$400,000 range.

Carlos Santana's band and Los Lobos capped the bash at Watsonville High School football field with a fiery jam. Graham press rep Roger Clark said 12,000 tickets were sold there at $5 apiece. That afternoon was radiant after hard rain the night before; lots of Chicano children went big-eyed while watching teenagers in '60s hippie garb caper barefoot on bright green grass. One attractive lady in designer sportswear rather completed the spectrum along about five o'clock when she sighed: "Wonderful show — I think it's time for a martini."

Everyone involved worked without pay. Jazz and blues people performing at the other two venues: Bobby McFerrin and Taj Mahal (duets), Pete Escovedo Orchestra, John Handy, Lydia Pense plus Cold Blood, Steve Miller Blues Band, Joe Louis Walker. KQED invited other TV and radio stations to carry its coverage on a commercial-free basis; outlets from Monterey Bay and Los Angeles to New York did so (selected segments).

"Why am I here?" Carlos Santana asked back when I spoke with him offstage. "The same reason we're all on the planet — to serve each other."

Bill Graham spent hours at the Watsonville site. "I was a child refugee in Europe during World War Two," he revealed via an interview. "A stray bomb hit our building (rural France). The earthquake was a 15-second war. Instant homelessness and joblessness. At least we can get people up off the ground...offer them some dignity...let them know that there are thousands out here who care. Let's fix the people before we fix the freeways."

Proceeds will enrich mayoral relief funds in Watsonville, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose — and Red Cross coffers. Graham described the concerts as "a way of calling 'time out' on the grief and the fear."

And Carlos told the large and obviously happy crowd: "The Archangel's watching over us now — "

JAZZ PHOTOGRAPHER Will Wallace makes known a more modest but equally heartfelt fundraiser. He's a board member for Monterey Bay Blues Festival — and his effort has the full panel's approval.

Will seeks contributions that would honor late blues singer Sarah Levingston by helping her daughter stay in college. Sarah sustained fatal injuries last month when the driver of a stolen car plowed that vehicle into her auto.

Checks should be made out to Sarah Levingston Memorial Fund. Address: c/o Will Wallace — PO Box 51928 — Pacific Grove 93950. He'll make sure they reach the proper recipient.

Will set up a contributions jar at the recent Blues Fest dance in Seaside's Oldemeyer Center. "People kindly primed the pump with a hundred dollars," he said. "Sarah was such a fine vocalist and human being. I'm putting out the word to see how far this notion will go."

The event itself was a great success. Ticket-buyers from all over the peninsula packed the place, enjoying Bobby Reed's band and very good food. Board member Lee Durley placed a big banner; it noted that the occasion was dedicated to Miss Levingston's memory.

Oaklander Sarah had been a real hit at the 1989 Blues Festival — and Monterey Jazz Festival too.

BRIGHT AND WARM Brazilian sounds will fill the Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club on Thursday night (12/7) — courtesy of vocalist Claudia Gomez plus backup players from Marcos Silva's Intersection. Cover charge: $5 per. Well worth the sum.

Other bookings there include singer Kevin Feeney and What's Up (12/8-9), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (12/10), Don Pendergrass with friends (12/11), Jack and Ed Show (12/12), Dottie Dodgion Quartet (12/13), Smith and Gail Dobson (12/14).

Guitarist James Blood Ulmer's Special Project with Jamaladeen Tacuma and Calvin Weston. That's the offering Monday night (12/11) at Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz.

It's $11 apiece. Kicks off at eight o'clock. Center Stage Ticketing.

And Kuumbwa honcho Tim Jackson notes unusual scheduling next week. Neal Finn's Union Dues Big Band will work out Tuesday evening (12/12) from 8:30-11:30. Only $4 per at the door. Excellent musicians from Monterey Peninsula, Santa Cruz, San Jose area.

Thereafter the venue will go dark — traditional break — till early January (1/8). Monster booking then: Steve Turre Quintet featuring pianist Mulgrew Miller. Trombonist Robin Eubanks too.

The full house rocked like Down Home chicken shacks and no-jive revival tents when pianist Les McCann and tenorman Eddie Harris made a stop on their reunion tour. Recently returned from Russia, the unit included stylish electric bassist Curtis Robertson Jr. and Norman Fearington on drums. It was the first time I'd seen Kuumbwa patrons dance in the aisles and join high-energy singalongs.

You'll recall that Les and Eddie had a smash hit two decades ago on their Atlantic Records album from Montreux Jazz Fest — the Gene McDaniels composition Compared to What. The revolutionary anthem reflected their great joy, Baptist roots, social ardor. The Kuumbwa version moved audience members to chant on cue and later applaud wildly. No fewer than three encores followed the first of two hot shows.

Les was comfy with some basic bop lines and pretty ballads as well as his signature (Church) sound. Eddie's screamers gave way to meditative romanticism of great beauty. Both sang, the Harris scat flights a self-aware mix of Bobby McFerrin and that great Eddie Jefferson. Both showed their souls while emphasizing the partnership's entertainment value.

For me, the absolute mind-blower was drummer Fearington. His fedora set at a hip angle throughout, demonstrating deep concentration and superb technique, this man looked and sounded like the late Dannie Richmond come back. Norman's right hand ride cymbal achieved laserlike purity; then he would go for short inspired bursts that incorporated the whole set and made visions of Dannie (when with Mingus in their glory times) flit along the walls. The effect was both awesome and wonderful — poetry, in a word.

Fearington: relaxed intensity, angular body language, big happiness behind those tubs, right work found. He smiled wide when I mentioned the Richmond flashes. "I knew Dannie and we were good friends," Norman said between sets. "I never studied with him; he never studied with me. It was more a matter of seeing each other now and then, meeting on the social level."

The 45-year-old artist said he's self-taught and from Philadelphia. He played his first pro gig at age 13 and over the years worked for Jimmy Smith, Lockjaw Davis, Milt Jackson, Ray Charles.

He makes "all kinds of music" (as did Dannie). And: "I've had good tours with David Bowie, Tina Turner, Sun Ra. I grew up listening to Blakey and Max (Roach) and Elvin (Jones). I write a bit and have been teaching a lot in Europe — at Copenhagen Conservatory."

Case number: P 29404

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: Ella Hamlin Johnson.

A PETITION has been filed by: Meri Maben in the Superior Court of California, County of: Monterey.

THE PETITION requests that Meri Maben and Merwin Lewis be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

UNPARALLELED selection and superior follow-up service are featured at the Spa Store, located at 337 Monterey St. in downtown Salinas. For information, call 757-3054. (Gregg Wutke photograph).

The Spa Store leads the industry

In just 10 years, The Spa Store has moved to the forefront of the area's spa industry.

The spas are built of such quality that more than 30 independent retailers are selling them.

Spa Stores stock spas ranging from the two-person 250 tub to an eight-person 425 gallon affair. The same is true with jet systems, with spas containing four to seven jets, with injected air and 1.5-horsepower engine.

Remember, at the Spa Store you're basically buying direct, so the prices are the lowest anywhere.

Spa Stores guarantee free delivery, installation and chemical follow-up.

The Spa Store in Salinas is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday and is located at 337 Monterey St. in downtown Salinas. Phone 757-3054.

Dealing on a national level and buying on the East Coast and in Europe for the past five years, Canadas and Robinson are constantly coming up with the unique and unexpected.

One visit to this fascinating shop and you'll come face to face with rare French fashion dolls, French Bebes, automations and hard-to-find accessories.

The store also carries a good selection of old and new Steiff teddy bears, tin toys, jack-in-the-boxes, doll and children's size furniture, rare and discontinued Madame Alexander dolls and even miniature Victorian theaters with colorfully lithographed sets.

Creative deception specialty of artist Peik van Waveren

Seeing is believing at Specialized Painting, where Carmel Valley artist Peik van Waveren "deceptive" work is created.

Van Waveren works in a wide variety of faux finishes, color matching, gliding, mural, trompe l'oeil and wood graining.

"When I paint something everybody always says, 'Are you sure that's paint? It can't be,' " says van Waveren of his marble and wood grain finishes.

In less than a year, van Waveren has become one of the most sought-after artists on the peninsula for home fashion designs.

Originally van Waveren constructed pieces of furniture, but he wanted to embellish that work, so he studied his craft with noted artists Joanne Day, Leonard Pardon and Isabel O'Neil.

He's proud ofhis work, with his kitchen table having 42 faux inlays of marble and precious stones for visitors to ogle.

Eventually, he says he will open his home as a showplace to display his talents. In the meantime, van Waveren can be reached at 659-3831.

NATURAL FORMULATIONS and a sensitive approach are the hallmarks of the complexion treatments offered by Norma Ross at her Carmel Rancho salon.

Norma Ross, cosmetician/aesthetician and owner of Normalizing in Carmel Valley, has chosen this holiday season to provide some answers to some oft-asked questions.

Does weather and stress affect one's complexion?

Weather can be harsh to the complexion and stress or tension in the body always shows in the face. My clients appreciate the relaxing, smoothing effects of acu-point therapy, as well as the product's ability to nourish and protect the skin.

What is acu-point therapy and what are its benefits?

Acu-point therapy is the use of points on the face to stimulate activity in the entire body and release tension in the face.

Does each client at Norma-lyzing receive the same treatment?

No. Each treatment is custom designed to meet the needs of the individual skin type and current condition.

Are products used at Norma-lyzing different from other products?

Yes, very different, beginning with the way these herbs are grown and processed. No machines, no mineral oil and no synthetics are used.

How can interested readers make an appointment?

By calling me, Norma Ross, at 625-5114. My studio is located at 26555 Carmel Rancho Blvd. Cosmetician/aesthetican state license No. 28976.

Miner's Gallery Americana a Carmel-by-the-Sea tradition

Miner's Gallery Americana Corp., founded 20 years ago, has become one of the largest and finest galleries on the West Coast, while enjoying steadily increasing stature through its worldwide clientele.

Drawing on Rosemary Miner's prior years showing her paintings in major galleries across America and on Ralph Miner's many years in architectural design and management systems, a certain focus has been obtained.

Gallery Americana's philosophy of fine art can best be summed up by artist-philosopher Robert Henri.

"All manifestations of art are but landmarks in the progress of the human spirit ... to some degree every human being is an artist. He needs but to see pictures with his active mind, look into them for the thngs that belong to him, and he will find soon enough in himself an art connoisseur."

GALLERY AMERICANA, founded more than 20 years ago, offers a roster of artists in a spectrum of styles, from the seascapes of Rosemary Miner to impressionist, realist and primitive works at prices ranging from $1,000 to $70,000.

CLOTHING AND antiques from the rooftop of the world are gathered at Cheppu from Himalaya. Owner Christine Kolisch makes several annual trips to the Far East to populate her Carmel shop with exotic finds. (Craig Lovell photograph).

Exotic Himalayan fashions, furnishings found at Cheppu

Cheppu — which in Nepalese means protector or guardian diety — is doing just that for Tibetan antiques, which reflect a dying culture.

Cheppu owner Christine Kolisch makes several annual trips to the Far East to bring back what she considers are priceless goods that are threatened with destruction due to political unrest.

A sampling of the antiques includes wooden chariot pieces from India; Thangkas, which are century-old paintings by Tibetan-Buddhist monks; a textile collection from Laos made of ekat weave and silk embroidery; Ladakhi (Little Tibet) jewelry; and one of the best collections of Tibetan carpets on the West Coast.

Kolisch continues to design her own clothes, with this winter's line featuring cozy coats with built-in shawls and hoods.

Cheppu also offers accessories such as Nepalese belt bags, scarves and jewelry.

Cheppu is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is located in Pantiles Court on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth, behind Em Le's restaurant. Phone 625-5902.

Trimming down is now easier at Pacific Trim & Tone

DR. FRANK Toppo has come up with the most effective diet aid on the market today: ToppFast, now available at Pacific Trim & Tone in Pacific Grove. (Gregg Wutke photograph).

Finally there's a peninsula location where you can get ToppFast — Pacific Trim & Tone.

ToppFast is the most effective protein-sparing modified fasting product on the market today. It can be your answer to permanent weight control.

So, you've tried everything? Fads, diets, shots, pills, grapefruit, hypnosis — but you can't get that extra weight off? One famous talk show hostess tried everything too, but she's only been successful with one diet plan.

The ToppFast diet plan is the brainchild of Dr. Frank R. Toppo, a board-certified Bariatrics specialist.

The plan is based on research findings that show overweight people can reach their goal weight quickly and safely by fasting — when it's supplemented with a protein-sparing powder.

The ToppFast system is an example of "modified" fasting. Its nutritionally balanced formula gives dieters a minimum of 600 calores per day.

Pacific Trim & Tone will give you a free diet consultation by an authorized representative. Phone 372-5095.

Andre Balyon's paintings showcased at Carmel gallery

Dutch-born artist Andre Balyon has chosen Carmel as a showcase for his highly acclaimed works, featured in both oil and etchings.

Heirlooms

This season we bring you a collection of rich tapestries, elegant brocades, and romantic laces.

With the added talents of Marie Perkins, formerly of Carmel's "Barnyard Florist," we've created charming wreaths and garlands filled with old-fashioned garden roses and Hydrangeas intertwined with French ribbons.

Our pine armoires are brimming with scented pomanders and potpourri, floral topiaries and sweet nosegays for your tree.

We have vests made of fine vintage fabrics and finished with antique buttons, designed exclusively for Heirlooms, by Penny Cruz.

For the youngest ladies, we've filled an armoire with velvet dresses trimmed with lavish lace collars.

We are looking forward to sharing our Christmas season with you and would like to take this opportunity to wish you and your family a Happy and Healthy New Year.

Sincerely,
